MISCELLANEOUS READING.

LAMARTINE'S OPINION OF WOMEN.- WOman, with weaker passions than man, is superior to him in soul. The Gauls attributed to her an additional sense, the divine sense They were right. Nature has given women two painful heavenly gifts which distinguish them, and often raise them above human nature-compassion and enthusiasm. By compassion they devote themselves; by enthusiasm they exalt themselves. What more does heroism require? They have more heart and more imagination than men. Enthusiasm springs from the imagination, and self-sacrifice from the heart. Women are therefore, more naturally heroic than men. All nations have in their annals some of those miracles of patriotism of which woman is the instrument in the hand of God. it appears from said act of re-entry, that he, the When all is desperate in a national cause, we need not despair while there remains a spark of resistance in a woman's heart, whether she is called Judith, Clelia, Joan of Arc, Victoria Colonna in Italy, or Charbid that I compare those that I cite: Judith and Charlotte Corday sacrificed themselves, but their sacrifice did not recoil at their heroism mistook its aim; it took the poignard of the assassin, instead of the sword of the hero. Joan of Arc used only the sword of defence; she was not merely inspired by heroism, she was inspired by THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE .- A faithful minister of the Gospel being one day engaged in visiting some members of his flock, came to the door of a house where his gentle tapping could not be heard for the noise and contention within. After waiting a little he opened the door and walked in, saying with an authoritative voice, "I should like to know who is the head of the house." "Weel, sir," said the husband and father, "if you sit down a wee, we'll may be able to tell ye, for we're just tryin' to settle that point."-

A new kind of visiting card is noticed by a Paris paper-one left by a gallant upon "a beautiful artiste whose beauty inspired him with a respectful admiration." It was manufactured by a celebrated jeweller, and consisted of a thin sheet of gold, of the size of an ordinary card, with his name thereupon in letters formed of the finest diamonds!-On the envelope containing this Sardanapolian magnificence he wrote: "Not on account of departure." The artiste was touch
